Title of the Research Project: New approaches to 18th century Central European book history

Report about visit and future plans:

My stay at the University of Cambridge was a great experience. I gave a lecture at the The Centre for the Study of Global Human Movement. The very positive feedback and discussions with leading experts of book history and members of the New Habsburg Studies Research Network enabled me to think about my second book project in new perspectives. As well, I was invited to publish my current research in an established series of book history. At the Cambridge University Library and various college libraries I studied a plethora of book catalogues of the Early Modern period. These sources are important documents for my research, and it was possible for me to collect data for the application for a larger research project which I intent to conduct during a fellowship at the University of Cambridge in 2024. My two hosts host, Dr. William O'Reilly at the Faculty of History and Dr. Jenny Mander at Newnham College, were extremely helpful and supportive. Staying at Newnham College was inspiring indeed: I appreciated the interdisciplinarity, open discussions and the warm and welcoming atmosphere during my stay.
